the major argument for replacing a state's taxes with a much larger sales tax is that it would boost economic growth. These are effective and will certainly do the job.

That makes not only a strong structure, but also an affordable one.